The Ghadames Association for Heritage and Manuscripts is a Libyan civil society organization dedicated to documenting and preserving the cultural heritage of Ghadames, an oasis town recognized as UNESCO World Heritage located near Libya's border with Algeria and Tunisia. This poster describes the recent documentation and digitization campaigns of the Association, including the digitization of manuscripts of the trans-Saharan, a project conducted in partnership with ASOR and the Hill Museum and Manuscript Library and with the support of the Whiting Foundation. This poster also describes the frontiers that our group plans to explore in the coming years.
