

ASOR ECS Community College Video Supplementals

Stacy Davidson sdavid22@jccc.edu

Link to Video and Slideshow in Google Drive:

https://drive.google.com/drive/folders/1QydqF0NWdWigTqvEQ_FVDr0s04ZnXEG_?usp=sharing

Abstract:

From her perspective as a long-time adjunct at a community college in the Midwest, Professor Stacy Davidson guides you through practical information in applying to community college instructional positions as well as offers helpful tips on working at a community college as an ancient studies specialist. Particular attention is paid to the realities of part-time (adjunct) faculty positions and how to attend to well-being and long-range planning while pursuing career goals.

Bio:

Professor Stacy Davidson has designed and taught over 30 credit and non-credit courses on ancient Egypt, North Africa, the ancient Mediterranean, ancient Southwest Asia, and ancient languages. She is the founder and Team Lead of the Egyptology State of the Field project (egyptologystats.org) and is a Mellon/ACLS Community College Faculty Fellow for her project We Are For Egypt. Professor Davidson has been awarded a Lieberman Teaching Excellence Award and College Scholar award from her college as well as a national NISOD Excellence Award. You can find out more about her at scribespalette.com.

American Association of Community Colleges (AACC)

<https://www.aacc.nche.edu/>

American Association of University Professors (AAUP)

<https://www.aaup.org/>

Community College Resource Center (CCRC)

<https://ccrc.tc.columbia.edu/>

Contingent Magazine

<https://contingentmagazine.org/>

National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development (NISOD)

<https://www.nisod.org/>